The Tattler: or the Friends' Misunderstanding.

In a small country district; where some dozen families formed a neighborhood, there lived, and live still, two farmers, named Irong and Chase: They were both of them good! hearted, honest men, and had always been excellent neighbors. One Afternoon Former bong was in his door(yard, engaged about some trifling affair, and his wife stood near, ratching him.

" Ah, here comes John Cutler. Now we shall hear the news," said Mrs. Long as she noticed a youngish-looking, roughly-elad mar entering the yard.

.. Said John Cutler was the news-teller of the neighborhood; a sort of fueddling; busybody, who never actually premeditated any injury to his neighbors, but who yet had a great fondness for attending to every body's business but his own-a class of people very often met with and who are a pest to any society: where they may take up their quarters. Mr. Long greeted the new comer kindly, and the usual amount of common-place conversation was gone through with respecting the state of the crops, stock, weather, etc. "By the way," observed Cutter, as the

9. And now the Whitchurchites did greatly desite his election; and the women spake well concerning him-and even the Datch handmaidens, near unto the city of Stouffville, wrought with the sickle while their fathers and brothers went to the Election. And a great multitude of Whitchurchites went to the Polls and voted for Joseph.

10. And it came to pass that when the different tribes in the land of the North Riding had cast their votes : some for James and some for Joseph, that William, the High' Sheriff of the line between Upper and Lower Canada. land, came forth from the great city of Toronto, even unto the city of Newmarket, to declare unto the people which of the two had received away with school inspectors, but on the contrathe most votes at their hands,

19. And the truth of Joseph's epistle had been wrested, as no such thing had been contemplated; for all that he had written unto Samuel, was, that he should take heed that others did not buy the New Era, and not the Scribe; for he knew the power of Erastus and the Era, and Joseph greatly desired that they should continue to walk in the ways of truth 20. The Arctic came in contast with another steamer at noon on the 27th ult., about 46 miles off Cape Race, in a dense fog. The steam of the Arcite at he time was at 13 knots an hour, and the propeller had all sails set, with a strong forward wind. It was at first supposed that the Arctic had sustained little or no injury, and assistance was immediately rendered to the propeller, which was principally damaged, but was soon discovered that the Arctic was also leaking and it gained so rapidly that the fires were soon extinguished. Every effort was then made for saving those on board the Arctic, but as four or five boats had left to render, assistance to the propeller, there was only one left which was soon filled, and a raft was hastily constructed. A panie took possession of those on board the Arctic. They crowded for the raft and numbers reached it-others were drowned in the attempt. All this time the vessel twas filling ern Canal flour; 29s 6d a 30s; extra, 30s a 31s; rapidly, and of a sudden she, with all on board
